

Bucharest Regional Conference Electronic Discussion Information September 2006

As a follow up to this seminar, we are providing an electronic discussion board on which you and others may raise issues of interest. The list of participants in this venue, known as FUNDLINK, is maintained by The Fund for Arts and Culture from their office in the United States and is linked to our website. All your questions, comments or answers to posted comments will be disseminated through emails. When an email is sent by a subscriber to FUNDLINK, all participants in the site will be emailed the posting.

This on-line discussion forum should provide a valuable and unique opportunity for you to interact with each other as well as other consultants and participants from past programs. We hope you will use the opportunity to have community-wide conversations about the subjects of interest to you, material we may have covered in this seminar, and any topics that may arise as a result of this seminar.

Once you are subscribed to FUNDLINK you will receive instructions about exactly how you list a posting. We hope you will help make this an interesting, active discussion vehicle by using it often and participating in the “conversations.” You will receive an email when questions or answers are posted. Please feel free to post questions, answers or comments at any time.

If at any time you have any questions, concerns or feedback, please contact Dorsey at Dorsey@fundforartsandculture.org. She will respond to you as quickly as possible.

If you want to unsubscribe from FUNDLINK, there are two ways to do so—either by going to our website for instructions: <http://fundforartsandculture.org/maillinglist.shtml>, or by emailing Dorsey@fundforartsandculture.org with a request to delete your name.

All participants of this seminar should provide their email addresses to be placed on FUNDLINK.

The electronic discussion board has been made possible through the generous support of the Getty Foundation.
